

Ph. D. in Hispanic Languages and Literatures with Concentration in Second Language Studies*

Course Requirements

18-24 courses distributed as follows:

- 6-8 500-level courses in Hispanic Literary and Cultural Studies (including Span 501 and Span 503; including courses in both Peninsular and Latin American regions)
- 1 course in Second Language Acquisition (Span/Ling 466)
- 1 course in Linguistics and Language Learning (Span 4111) or approved equivalent
- 2-4 other courses approved for the Graduate Certificate in Language Instruction
 - Reading and Writing in a Second Language (Span 4692)
 - Grammar and Vocabulary Acquisition (Span 467)
 - Phonology and Second Language Acquisition (Span 417)
 - Second Language Acquisition and Technology (Span 4023)
- 1 course in Psychology of Language (Psych 433)
- 2-3 400/500-level courses in Linguistics
 - Advanced Spanish Grammar and Syntax (Span 411)
 - Phonology and Second Language Acquisition (Span 417)
 - Topics in Linguistics (Ling 478) (may be repeated for different topics)
- 2-3 400/500-level courses in Memory and Learning
 - Human Memory (Psych 5085)
 - Retrieval Processes in Human Memory (Psych 5086)
 - Cognitive Psychology (Psych 5087)
 - Cognitive Neuroscience of Memory (Psych 5089)
 - Concepts in the Science of Memory (Psych 5095)
 - Cognitive Psychology Applied to Education (Psych 4302)
- 1 course in graduate research methods: Research Designs and Methods (Psych 5011 or Educ 503) or approved equivalent
- 2 courses in graduate statistics: Quantitative Methods I (Psych 5066) and Quantitative Methods II (Psych 5067)

*Ph. D. students who complete this concentration also complete the Graduate Certificate in Language Instruction